RE-ECHO

Presented by

THE SENIOR CLASS

LYNDONVILLE CENTRAL SCHOOL

Lyndonville, N. Y.

FOREWORD

Time is like the coming of a tide, bringing with it the appearance of many events — some of history-making importance and others of no consequence whatever. And like the swelling and ebbing of the tide, time has its effect upon all it touches. In our school this passing of time has also wrought many changes.

As students, we end our last year of school training at Lyndonville Central School while Mr. Robert O. Starr completes his first year as principal here. Just as he took the place of Mr. Lucian Webber, who retired last year, this year's Juniors will step into our place as Seniors. Other pupils will enter Kindergarten, their first year of school.

Therefore, to show the significance of time in this continuous cycle, the Senior Class selected "Time Marches On" for the theme of this, the 1954 Re-Echo.

DEDICATION

To honor the successful completion of his first year at Lyndonville Central School, we, the Senior Class of 1954, take great pride and pleasure in dedicating this edition of the Re-Echo to our new principal, Mr. Robert O. Starr, who, with his kindness, understanding, and high ideals has won the admiration and respect of both students and faculty. It is our sincere hope that he will remain with the Orange and Black for a long time to come.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

Miss Hoyer

ADMINISTRATION

During our fast and fleeting journey through elementary, junior high, and high school, we thrived under a school system which operated as efficiently as the most delicate of Swiss movements. The main spring in our "timepiece" was Miss Louella Hoyer, Superintendent of Schools. Aiding Miss Hoyer in her tremendous task was the Board of Education with Mr. Howard E. Brown as its president. Recording the events of time for this organization was Mr. Lucian Webber, Clerk of the Board of Education, who retired from a dual-role as principal of the high school only last year.

Like all good clocks, Lyndonville Central School needed its own jewels to help keep it running smoothly. The "jewels" of our senior year included Mr. Robert O. Starr, the new Supervising Principal of the high school, Mr. Earl M. Warner, Principal of the elementary school, and Mr. Donald F. Herry, Vice-Principal, and Mr. Thomas H. Grant, the newly appointed Administrative Assistant.

Last, but most certainly not least, came the teachers, the "hands" which led us through our school careers. The task of this faculty was not an easy one. It was hard work, which, to be done successfully, required an endless amount of time and energy along with years of training and study. To carry out their duties to an even higher degree, the faculty held many meetings to discuss plans for the betterment of our school and for the benefit of the students.

As the clock keeps ticking away the seconds, we, the members of the graduating class of 1954, will use the fruits of knowledge and the high ideals that have been stilled in us by this capable system as the basis for making our own futures more successful and happy!

MR. THOMAS GRANT AND MRS. WINIFRED BYERLY

"My, how time flies" was the oft-heard phrase as we, the members of the graduating class of 1954, proudly looked back on our school career. It seemed only a short time ago that we had learned our ABC's and had had our first taste of geography, English, and arithmetic.

During our Senior year, which was our last, busiest, and most eventful, we sponsored our Senior play, "Hillbilly Wedding". The members of our class made "right nice" hillbillies. We also sold magazine subscriptions and put on a chicken supper. Combining the profits of these projects with our dues, the proceeds from the sale of the 1954 Re-Echo, and the money we had earned during our Junior year, we found that we had more than enough for our long-awaited Senior trip to New York.

It wasn't long before June found its way to Lyndonville, and with graduation day ahead of us, we realized how much we owed to our teachers, who had guided us through the twelve 'best years of our lives'!

The Junior and Sophomore classes of Lyndonville Central School, knowing that time passes quickly, took advantage of each passing minute to prove their worth as future Seniors. Officers chosen for the Junior class were: Fraser James, president; Barbara Maynard, vice-president; Victor Larson, secretary, and Maryann Sevenski, treasurer. Their very able advisors were Mr. David Johnson and Miss Alice Gray. In addition, Larry Meland and Donna Fraser were elected to represent the Junior class on the Student Council. Donna was elected vice-president of the Student Council.

The Juniors launched their money making projects with the sale of candy and hot-dogs at the canning factory. Their next project was to sell pop, candy, and hot-dogs at all athletic events. At Christmas time, the sale of Stationery proved to be a great success. Then came their square dance at which everyone promenaded to the western music of Max Raney.

It was truly a great day for the Juniors when their class rings finally arrived, but the biggest and gayest event of the year was the Junior Prom. The combined Junior and Senior picnic was their last activity before entering the mystical land of Seniors.

The Sophomores, in their first year of actual high school, also plunged into a year of activity and responsibility. They elected Sue Krenning as president with David Childs, vice-president; Connie Rohland, secretary, and Joye Rowley, treasurer. Gary Housel and Barbara Lewis were their Student Council representatives and their very capable advisors were Mr. Frederick Bluhm and Mrs. Eleanor Wolfe.

The Sophomore treasury received its first profits from several bake sales. A hay ride was also enjoyed by the Sophomore class and they held their annual picnic with the Freshmen at the end of the year.

Most members of both of these classes were well represented in sports activities, musical groups, clubs, and the cheerleading squad.

As their Senior year looms ahead these two classes are scheming ways to conquer it as "Time Marches On."

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES

The members of these grades were bright-eyed with anticipation when they received their new lockers in September. As the hands of the clock spun around, they settled into their new routines of study.

With Mr. McCormick as their advisor, Jean Ames as their president, and Marjorie Conners and Leonard Pritchard as their Student Council representatives, the Freshman boys proved outstanding in athletic events. Three girls from this class were chosen as cheerleaders. Voices from this class were raised in the chorus and choir. The Freshmen closed the year by having a picnic with the Sophomores.

The eager eighth graders took their first regents' classes this year and the time-keepers included Mrs. Winifred Beyerly, Mrs. Nancy Phillips, Mrs. Isabel Baldwin, and later, Mr. Thomas Leicht. They developed a clean-up project which was used for the whole junior high school. The class that proved to be the neatest went to the class picnic free of charge. The eighth graders held four elections.

There were two homerooms for the seventh graders, too. In Mr. Roloff's homeroom class officers were elected every five weeks and in Mr. Raymond Phillips' homeroom they were chosen every ten weeks.

The seventh graders had a Christmas party in December and their class picnic in the latter part of May. In November Mr. Roloff left teaching to take another position and Mr. Paul Ryan took his place.

These classes also put on one-act plays for their own entertainment, participated in intramurals, spelling bees, clubs, and other activities.

As time marches on, the members of the Freshman class, the eighth grade, and the seventh grade, will climb the ladder of knowledge until they reach the place where they will receive their high school diplomas.

PRINCIPAL OF ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

GRADES K-6

The year of 1954 found the Lyndonville Central Elementary School putting its youngest citizens into action. For the past two years, student monitors, under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Woodruff, have been on duty in the halls every morning. This organization teaches the young students courtesy, orderliness, and respect for others. A safety patrol was also organized, at the suggestion of Mr. Robert Starr, to escort the children across the streets before and after school.

Many of the grades organized clubs which elected monitors, planned entertainment, and performed other duties. Pupils from the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades had an opportunity to raise and lower the flag every school day. By learning to care for the flag in this way, the pupils also learned to respect it.

All of the grades also participated in other activities which were both entertaining and educational. Miss Grehlinger's kindergarten had a rhythm band on one occasion. The second grades, under the supervision of Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Wolhtjen, put on a gay operetta entitled "The Spring Glow." Miss Lienhart's fourth grade produced a sad, but pleasing play, "The Princess Who Never Laughed." The sixth graders took part in a Christmas operetta, "The Toymakers." Under the guidance of Mrs. Porter, the school librarian, grades three through six went on field trips to the local public library. Members of the fifth and sixth grades formed a library club in the elementary school. Mrs. Cooper's class visited the local baby shoe factory where they studied the basic steps of shoe making.

All in all, 1954 was a very prosperous and enjoyable year for the grade students of Lyndonville Central School.

FOOTBALL

"Time out!, Lyndonville," said the referee as he finished blowing his whistle. While we have time out let's take a look at the past. The 1953 football season, although not very productive for the team, offered a challenge to the fighting spirit of Lyndonville Central School. Rivalry ran high in the crowds and the biting fire of competition keen. Many new recruits placed their size nines in the footprints of the players who had led us on to so many victories the year before.

Several night games, played in Medina under the lights, helped very much to increase the number of spectators and the cheering of all these fans stimulated our team to pile up scores.

The "Tigers" won one game, lost four, and tied one game this year. Although they were playing against overwhelming odds, the team displayed remarkable offensive and defensive plays against their opponents and continued to battle heroically.

Next year, a group of veteran players will be supplemented by many fresh aspirants, and hope to produce more successful results. As for cooperativeness and team spirit, any future squad will find it difficult to match the Flying Tigers of '54.

BASKETBALL

Time, time, time! How the quintets from Lyndonville Central School battled against the clock trying to swish one more through the hoop before the last second ticked off. Sometimes they beat the old man with the scythe and at other times he cut them down to size.

The starting five had ample aid from several of the subs for a large part of the season. The squad was never really at full strength and this accounts for its disappointing showing on the scoreboard.

Larry Meland was the high scorer for the season as he dropped in 121 points while the runnerup, Jim Enderby, netted a neat 97 points. Following close on his heels was Ronnie Mapes who swished 48 points through the buckets while Alan Foss garnered 45. Other scorers were: John Postle (41), Gordon Joy (30), Stanley Church (22), and John Church (10).

This year four members of the squad depart with diplomas in hand but Coach Hartsen hopes to mold a good team from the remaining veterans and some of the promising Junior Varsity players.

BASEBALL

It was Spring, the time when the bird is on the wing and baseballs fill the air, and the boys turn out enthusiastically, ready for another baseball season. Hopes were high for another championship team to carry on the tradition established over the past three years.

There were many returning veterans, including catcher, Jon Postle; pitcher, Ronnie Mapes; first baseman, Jim Enderby; second sacker, Norm Skinner; shortstop, Larry Meland; third baseman, Gordon Woods, and outfielders, John Church, Jim Costich, Stan Church and Gordon Joy.

The boys faced a tough schedule, but, came out on top with eleven wins and no losses. Ronnie Mapes, Lyndonville's star pitcher came through with four no-hit, no run games. These games were with Wyoming, Pavilion, Byron-Bergen, and Hemlock. In the quarter finals Lyndonville won over Hemlock 11-0; in the semi-finals they edged Andover out with a score of 5-1; and won the final with a score of 2-1 over Naples.

As the seasons go by, there is a promise that the baseball players of LCS will repeat the string of victories that they had this season.

MUSIC

*"The time for the singing

MUSIC CLUBS

As the metronome marked time, the members of the Lyndonville Central School music organization, practiced many hours so their performance would be as precise as the peep signal on N. B. C.

This year all of the band members were outfitted with new uniforms, and with Mr. Warren Wohltjen as their director, they very successfully took part in two band concerts. Many of the outstanding members represented our school in the All-State Band. Awards were given to Randy Smythe, Carol Waters, Gordon Woods, and Jeff Smythe for being leaders of their sections in the band. An award for advancement was given to Earlene Dunham, also, and a second award to Jeff Smythe, this one for the highest grade of musical performance. Randy also nabbed two awards, his second one being for outstanding musical service in the senior year.

The vocal groups also made a good showing this year. The Boys' and Girls' Ensembles included in their program songs of the classical, semi-classical, and popular fields. The Mixed Choir, complete with new choir robes, harmonized songs for the entertainment of many, as did the Mixed Chorus. In April these groups presented their annual spring concert, using "April in Paris" as their theme appropriate for the time. Many of the boys and girls from these groups participated in the All-State Choir, Potsdam Chorus, and various other festivities of the year.

As the finals came about, the choir robes, band uniforms, instruments and song books were carefully put away, closing the door on a very successful year for the musical organizations of the Black and Orange.

STUDENT COUNCIL

President	-	-	-	-	STANLEY CHURCH
Vice-President	-	-	-	-	DONNA FRASER
Secretary	-	-	-	-	JAMES ENDERBY
Advisor	-	-	-	-	MR. THOMAS GRANT

When the school bell rang opening the 1953-1954 school year, the Lyndonville Central School Student Council immediately vaulted into action. Each new problem brought about by the swinging of the clock's pendulum was discussed thoroughly by this thirteen member organization. This year Stanley Church was president of the Student Council and Mr. Thomas Grant acted as advisor.

Proceedings began with the council's decision to join the Orleans County Council of Student Associations. This group attempts to develop better understanding among schools and also promotes the exchange of ideas.

In the latter part of December, a very successful drive for Care Inc. was sponsored by the Student Council. The money collected for this worthy project went to help needy persons in Europe and Asia. A March of Dimes drive was also promoted by the organization. This year proceeds from it amounted to well over one hundred dollars.

Early in the spring, members approved a plan for a donkey basketball game which had been suggested by the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America. The Student Council also approved plans and confirmed dates for the annual picnics, the Senior play, class suppers, bakesales, and various other money-making projects.

The efficient way in which the organization functioned won it the respect of both the teachers and the student body. With their work completed, the members carefully put away the gavel and calendar, which were not to be brought out again until the ringing of the opening alarm for the next school year.

LAMBDA CHI SIGMA

President	MARY HILL
Vice-President	BARBARA MAYNARD
Secretary-Treasurer	SUE KRENNING
Advisor	MISS MOLYNEUX

During its third year of existence, the Lambda Chi Sigma, the Honor Society of Lyndonville Central School, was engrossed in a period of booming prosperity. It made itself more sufficient by clarifying its constitution and the things it stands for. This organization offers many advantages to the student body. It creates an enthusiasm of the part of students to render service to their school and to their community. A group such as this also encourages students to continue their education after they have graduated from high school.

Five charter members of the original Lambda Chi Sigma left us last year. They were Judy Oaks, Judy Meland, Lynette Barnum, Marilyn Fish, and Marcin Draffin. This year the remaining four charter members, Amy Everts, Mary Hill, Elaine Neuman, and Shirley Waters graduated. Sue Krenning was welcomed as a new member of the society this year.

With Miss Molyneux as their able advisor, the members successfully carried on their activities. They selected honor society pins and membership cards for all future members.

All of the members are looking forward to the time when the Lyndonville Central School Lambda Chi Sigma will be a member club of the National Honor Society. This organization offer many advantages which can not be given by the regular group. It is hoped that next year will be the year when this consolidation comes about.

With their third year behind them, the members are striving toward an even better and more prosperous year next year — a year when they will again welcome new members with new ideas.

ART CLUB

President	-	-	-	-	-	BRUCE AUSTIN
Vice President	-	-	-	-	-	SANDRA REED
Secretary	-	-	-	-	-	LAURA DIX
Advisor	-	-	-	-	-	MR. FREDERICK BLUHM

"Time is the image of eternity," said one of the poets; and time indeed does record all events, human and otherwise, which are manifested in various ways. Members of the art club learned that various art mediums could help them record part of this ceaseless march of time and at the same time that they could derive great enjoyment and satisfaction from these activities, time-consuming though they usually were.

Aside from performing their regular activities, the members spent a great deal of their time helping other organizations prepare any needed art projects. Among these was the staging for the senior play, "Hillbilly Wedding," which demanded a great amount of imaginative art work. The Hillbilly cabin had to appear run-down and dilapidated, so with this in mind, the "artistes deluxe" proceeded to create huge cracks on the walls of the scenery, to hang improvised portraits at odd angles, and to add other features which met the required specifications.

At Christmas time, the library windows were decorated with paintings of a lovely Madonna and large poinsettias looking up to great white flaming candles.

Joan Woodroe, Art Editor for the Re-Echo, worked with members of the Art Club in making the drawings for the division pages of this yearbook. Among the other activities throughout the year, members entered the Poppy Poster Contest, decorated trays, hand-stenciled cloth, made oil paintings and water-color landscapes, and tested their skill with modern art projects, such as mobiles.

Time will continue its mad forward race, and would-be future artists will employ old mediums and find new methods to mirror the parade of passing events. With this in mind, the Lyndonville Art Club will continue to tick off bigger and better endeavors in the wide field of artistic achievement.

Deadlines, the clock and time — the venerable enemies of the journalist — harassed the Press Club again this year. Fifteen eager beavers with noses for news were enrolled at the first L. C. S. Press Club meeting this year to meet these deadlines. As time went on more students joined these "veteran" reporters. Mr. H. Raymond Phillips was the advisor of this active group and their main objective was to depict every-day school activities, accurately and promptly.

Some of last year's weekly features which had proved to be popular, were continued this year. These included the "Roving Reporter", the weekly book review, the "Thumbprint", and the sports news. Two new feature columns, "The Alumni Corner" and "Pet Peeves", were added this year.

After the young reporters had succeeded in getting their interviews, writing the articles, and having them approved by Mr. Phillips, they were sent to be published in the local newspaper, "The Lyndonville Enterprise" and also the "Medina Daily Journal".

Early in the spring, the members of the press club went on a field trip to the Rochester Times Union plant. Here the members saw the different processes through which a large newspaper passes before it reaches the newsstands. They came away from the plant somewhat amazed, but filled with new ideas for their own publication. Also, each member was presented with his own name slug, cast on the linotype machine. This was a memorable souvenir.

With the new ideas and better writing techniques that they acquired during this year of activity, the Press Club members are planning to increase their column by adding new features again next year.

As the scythe of time brought the month of September into being, a "time for extra-ordinary toil" began for the Lyndonville Chapter of the Future Farmers of America. Starting with ten enrolled members, it wasn't long before the roll call had increased to twenty-three. During the year, the members went on a dairy judging tour to local farms, where they learned the basic principles of judging various breeds of cattle. They also went to a poultry show in Rochester, where they studied techniques used in the judging of poultry. They acquired knowledge as to the best procedures in the care and feeding of both cows and poultry while on these field trips.

The F. F. A. selected Leslie Thomas, Gordon Joy, Elton Bentley, Fraser James and Barry Neal as the judging team to represent them at the fruit show, also in Rochester. Here they learned the effects that different types of spray material and other chemicals have upon various fruits.

In the month of March, this organization sponsored a donkey basketball game. Here, various members of the faculty and some of the village citizens attempted, amid great hilarity on the part of the spectators, to move stubborn little burros in the direction of the proper basket. Near the end of the year, the F. F. A. also put on a father and son banquet.

When spring-planting time rolls around in the years to come, the seeds of knowledge that the F. F. A. members have gained through their various activities will help them greatly in the management of their own farms, as the passage of time and the seasons reflects the fruits of their labors.

MRS. PORTER

What place can be said to more clearly represent time than a library? Here, without the aid of any trick devices, one has his choice of journeying back to the beginning of time, remaining in the present, or advancing into the future. As time trekked along on its incessant march, the library staff put into practice many schemes to make the journeys of arm chair travelers more enjoyable.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Porter, both the elementary and high school libraries are keeping pace with the parade of progress. In the elementary school, fifth and sixth graders learned the fundamentals of library procedure so that they were able to take over some of the routine tasks of operating the library. This young group of librarians also helped initiate a picture file for their library. With the cooperation of the teachers and the librarian, the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth grades were able to go on excursions to the local public library to see how it "ticked."

The high school library staff, although it had no regularly scheduled meetings this past year, did much to facilitate the operation of their library. They helped prepare new books for circulation, aided with book displays, and worked on many other projects to whet the reading appetite of the students. As one added feature this year, summaries have been placed on the inside covers of fiction books so that students will be able to "tell a book by its cover."

This system of student participation in the various phases of library routines has familiarized them with the functions of the library. An appreciation of the technical aspects of library management has given them a better foundation for using the library to the best advantage in the future.

—P. Roth

YEARBOOK STAFF

"Time Marches On" is one statement which can not be denied, especially in this great age of new technical and scientific developments. The world of progress is marching at a very fast pace. Our yearbook was also a fast-moving project when placed in the capable hands of this year's Editor-in-Chief, Shirley Waters, and the Assistant Editor, Amy Everts. We elected imaginative Audrey Beechler to serve as our Literary Editor. She had a few headaches revising the articles. The business of the yearbook was handled by a very hard-working classmate, George Bentley, and his assistants, Richard Jones and Roger Stalker. The photographs for the yearbook were taken at the beginning of the year and we are happy to say that the photographer's cameras are still in good working order. Stanley Church and Randy Smith were chosen as co-editors in the field of photography. Their job was to take pictures at school activities. These included pictures taken at the senior play practice of the student members of the class and Lyndonville's own "Clark Gable", Mr. Thomas H. Grant. Editor Shirley also contributed many snapshots which were taken at play practice, the Junior Prom, and various other activities.

After these things are done, the feature articles had to be written, the students in the pictures identified, and the dummy sheets set up in final form. Finally, under the guidance of Mrs. Porter and Mr. Grant, the work was completed and the 1954 Re-Echo was sent to press.

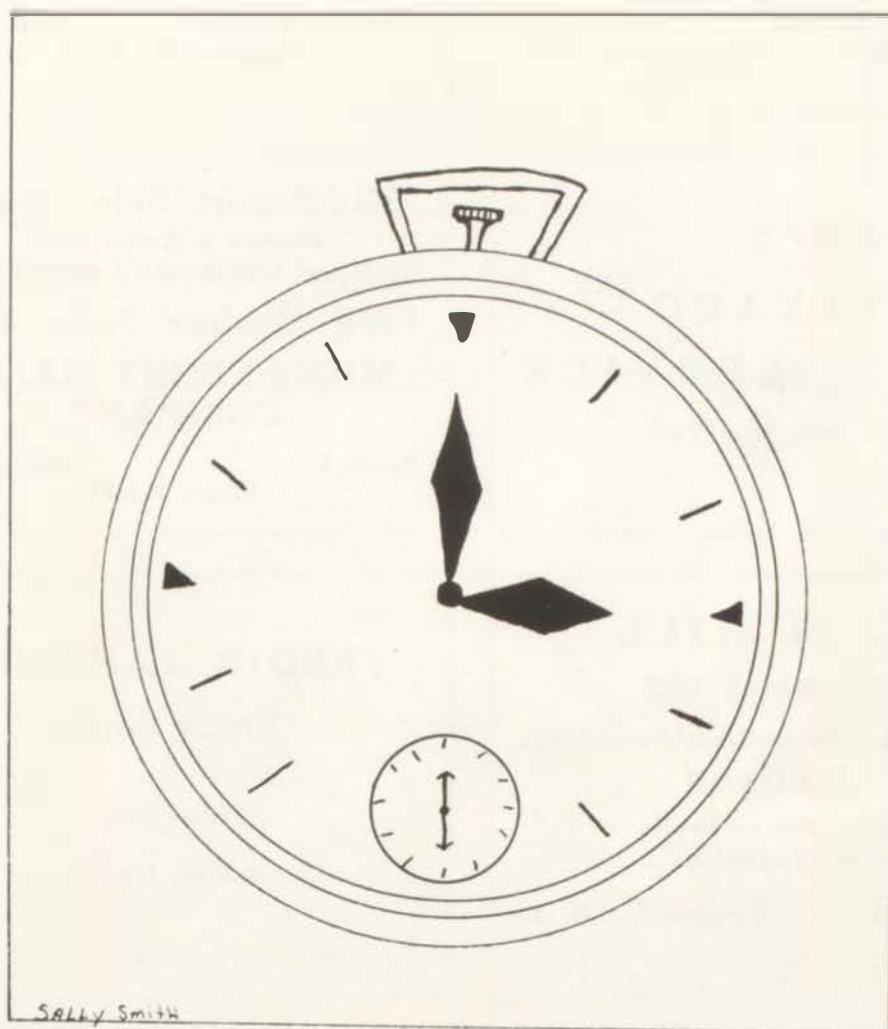

After this April 1st deadline had breathlessly been met, the whole Senior class let out a collective sigh of relief and sat back to wait for the return of the Re-Echo so that they could examine their handwork in its finished form. They also wondered if next year's class would enjoy working on the yearbook as much as they had had, but, of course, only time would tell.

CLASS HISTORY

Title	-	-	-	-	-	TIME MARCHES ON
Narrator	-	-	-	-	-	SANDRA MUNZEL
Main Characters	-	-	-	-	-	CLASS OF 1954

ACT I

As our minds meander back to the first days of our journey through school, we find that a Miss Norma Kleinsmith was presented with the task of breaking in 31 undeveloped little minds. Of these 31, 14 still remain in our graduating class. These are Barbara Barry, Marion Em Blanchard, Dorothy Jean Dack, Laura Dix, Lois Green, Mary Hill, Sandra Munzel, Elaine Neuman, Marilyn Wilson, Joan Woodroe, Elton Bentley, Richard Jones, Norman Skinner, and Randall Smythe. Those that left us at the end of the first grade were Marcia Gill, Sybil Sisson, Kenneth Dunn, Richard Dunn, and Ronald Manchester.

The first promotion was into the second grade with Mrs. Etta Miler, as our able teacher. Those that joined us in the second grade were Delores Bane, Suzanne Krisher, Helen Lawrence, Mable Vaughn, Alethe Thiel, James Enderby, Richard Goetzeman, Robert Harvey, and Roger Stalker. The ones who left us that year were Margaret Dunn, Helen Lawrence, June Sargent, Jack Donald, and Ben Powley.

The passing of time found us in the third grade answering to Miss Marie Barker as our guide. It was here that we gained the most classmates. They were Nancy Dean, Arlene Gibbs, Suzanne Sharping, Sally DuBois, Marylon Lake, Delores Pratt, Rosemary Dunn, Stanley Church, Alan Foss, Lloyd Freeman, James Youngs, William James, and Donald Scharping. Although we gained many, the inevitable departures were Nancy Dean, Alethe Thiel, Jane Riches, Rosemary Dunn, Ronald Mapes, James Youngs, and William James.

As time marched on we rapidly found ourselves in the fourth grade under the supervision of Miss Helen Leinhart. It was here that Patricia Donald, Audrey Beechler, Nancy Goppert, Margaret Bausch, Thomas Dennis, Robert Butler, and George Bentley joined our happy little group, while those who left for one reason or another were Delores Bane, Arlene Gibbs, and Robert Butler.

Fifth grade found the end of Act I drawing to a close. This year we were responsible to Mrs. Marjorie Cooper. Here we acquired still more classmates, among them were Dorothy Ames, Martha Greene, Betty Thies, Mary Dunn, Margaret Dunn, Elaine Otto, Patricia Roth, Dorothy Tobe, Beverly and Velma Waterson, Loretta Youngs, Dorothy Harris, Raymond Voelker, Gordon Joy, Donald Dunn and Carl and James Costich. At this point we lost Loretta Youngs and Lloyd Freeman.

We finally reached sixth grade, the half way mark of our goal. This concluded our journey through elementary school. Under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Dunham. Beverly Austin, Betty Gibbs, Sharon Redshaw and David Conley joined us, but by the end of the year the register was reduced by the loss of Sally DuBois, Betty Gibbs, Nancy Goppert and Raymond Voelker.

ACT II

At the opening of this act, under the direction of Mr. Earl Warner, our attitude as seventh graders was entirely changed. We were now junior high students and could change classes when the bells rang. The first glance around the room revealed new classmates. Among them were Janet Barry, Marion Kunz, Mary Marrow, Sally Smith, Bert Ames, Robert Crimmen and Loretta Youngs. It was here that Mary Dunn, Suzanne Scharping, Loretta Youngs, David Conley, Donald Dunn, Harry and Richard Goetzeman and Donald Scharping left us.

The following year, with the threat of eighth grade regents ahead of us, we settled down to work, with Mr. Donald Herry as our very able guide. We welcomed into our midst Shirley Waters and Eva Brady. Our losses this year were Margaret Baush, Mary Mower, Delores Pratt, Mabel Vaughn, and Eva Brady.

With the threat of regents over and suffering from suprisingly few ill effects we entered our Freshman year under the guidance of Mr. Glenford Fish. We added to our growing ranks Amy Everts, Wesley Glantz, Herbert Hawkins and Kenneth Varley, and lost Janet Barry, Martha Greene, Dorothy Harris, Betty Theis, Wesley Glantz and Herbert Hawkins. Our class officers were Stanley Church, president; Carl Costich, vice-president; Jim Enderby, secretary, and Jim Costich, treasurer. Advising us were Mr. Glenford Fish and Mr. Edward Fauler.

Now that we are in our second year of high school, our thoughts began to center on leaving school in a few short years. Seven more classmates left us. Doris Riemer, Margaret Dunn, Beverly Austin, Donald Young, Carl Costich, Kenneth Varley and Dorothy Tobe. Our class officers were Jim Enderby, president; Kenneth Varley, vice-president; Amy Everts, secretary and treasurer. Advising us was Miss Betty Molyneux.

As the second act of our school career came to a close we found ourselves up to our ears in class projects. We all worked hard and were rewarded with rich profits. Two more members left our class, Harold Dix and Suzanne Cook. Class officers during our junior year were Norman Skinner, president; Jim Enderby, vice-president; Amy Everts, secretary, and Miss Molyneux, advisor.

ACT III

Our long-awaited Senior year finally came and the class of 1954 contained four more than it did when it started eleven long years ago. With the officers of the class struggling to do their utmost to keep matters organized, the 1954 Re-Echo was published, suppers were successfully put on, and the senior play, "Hillbilly Wedding" was a hit. The president of the previous year, who was Norman Skinner, was re-elected to carry on his leadership. Dorothy Jean Dack was vice-president, Joan Woodroe was secretary, Amy Everts was our trustworthy and able treasurer, and Mrs. Winifred Byerly and Mr. Thomas Grant were our active advisors.

If time is a source of goodness, and we think it is, then the twelve long years at L. C. S. were well spent. Let's hope the next twelve are as good!

CLASS PROPHECY

Time — 2 P. M., June 28, 1964

Scene — Times Square—New York City

Ladies and gentlemen, a very good afternoon to you. This is George "Ace" Bentley bringing to you an on the spot report of the tenth anniversary parade of the Carefree Class of 1954, Lyndonville Central School. It was exactly a decade ago on this very date, that the graduation of the members of the Senior Class of that historic year took place. We are gathered here today for a tremendous celebration of that world-shaking event. Today Times Square and Broadway, from 42nd Street to 59th Street have been blocked off for a parade in which the members of this outstanding class will participate. They will parade over Broadway, around Times Square and past our reviewing stand, and then turn off onto 59th Street. Throngs of curious onlookers are already lining the sidewalks, eager to get a look at the famous members of this distinguished group. The progress of this great spectacle, under the joint sponsorship of all the major (and minor, too) networks, is being broadcast the world over, on television, radio, along the cable, and by pony express, by yours truly.

As you in the audience no doubt know, public speaking has been a hobby of mine since my collegiate days when I began the crusade to put every State Trooper back in the saddle again. As a member of the force, I felt I was in a good position to get at the seat of the problem. This announcing assignment today came to me because of the absence of Shirley Waters Killquart, ace woman correspondent, who will just arrive from Dien Bien Phu, on the front, in time to join the parade at its end. To add to her already wide journalistic experiences, Shirley made the trip across the Pacific in a Chinese Junk; and is soloing from San Francisco to New York in one of Roger Stalker's new experimental jets. A new series of her articles will be appearing in the Saturday Afternoon Rail, popular weekly, giving a first hand account of the trip.

Leading the parade is that great celebrity, Norman Skinner, who was class president back in historic '54. Norm is driving one of those sleek new Forever cars which never needs repairs or fuel. His main occupation now is completing developments in his on-the-farm laboratory of a device to fit over cow's horns so that when milk prices go down, the cows will give less milk, thereby causing the prices to rise again, along with the cream.

Next in line are Dick "Einstein" Jones and Mary "Curie" Hill. Mary has invented a machine which will make another person do as she wills. Dick in trying to go her one better is perfecting a formula which when consumed, will enable one to work without "working". That way one can do any and all manual labor while he or she is still sleeping.

Who is that leaping in the air? Oh, I see, it's Gordon Joy, the famous TV ballet star who mastered the leaps and poses of this art in Mr. Hartsen's high school gym class. He now rates second only to Maria Tallchief, prima ballerina. (He's shorter than she is.)

And there's Marion Em Blanchard affectionately throwing copies of her latest No-Bell prize winning book; the title sounds interesting, too. It's "How to Raise American Violets from Tomato Seeds and Garlic Buds." These flowers are said to have a very unusual aroma as well as a startling appearance.

The fellow in back of her with the red face is James Costich, President of Costich's Cosmetic Company. The slogan of this world-wide organization is, "Your Blush Can be Hushed with Jim's Jiffy Jellee for Crimson Countenances." The large quart size sells for 19c. Following him is a girl that makes good use of his cosmetics, Model Audrey Beechler. She still has her hatbox with her because she just came from an assignment at the Ron Jobbert Towers Agency, where she has been modeling the latest fashions in Eskimo suits for summer.

Lois Green took time out from her role as wife and mother to appear here today. During her spare time, she has invented a carrot dressing for red heads to utilize a growing government surplus of carrots, tops and all. For this outstanding achievement Lois received a Ford Foundation grant.

Thomas G. Dennis, who is now known as "T. G." to all his associates, is passing the reviewing stand at this moment. He is head of the Dennis Daylight Dispensary for Coffee Cravers. Tommy amassed a fortune after hitting upon the idea, back in '54, of pulverizing coffee beans with mechanical false teeth. At one bean per cup and no outside labor expense, it's no wonder he's rich.

Pat Donald was another member of the Class of '54 who followed in the foot steps of the truly great inventors. She patented a type of knee braces for cheerleaders. This prevents any injury to knees while performing, but it also prevents any knee bending, thus bringing about a new type of stiff-legged cheerleading which swept the country like the songs of Charlie Applewhite did back in 1954.

Amy Everts flew in from Newfoundland, fresh from her "Church" work with the aviation corps out there. She will spend the rest of this week with her old friend, Marion Kunz Ames, who has published a book bringing out a point of view quite different from that of the Gilbreth family, entitled "Dearer by the Dozen." As I first saw Marion coming around the bend, I thought the book referred to dogs, but on closer inspection, I see that those creatures on the leashes are children. I guess she doesn't want to lose them in the crowd.

The big black vehicle you see coming now is Randall Smythe's latest engineering feat, a Hydrogen-driven limousine. It was designed especially for his father's business, but, it is also adaptable to Randy's ever-present escapades.

Here comes Colonel Roger Stalker who received his promotion after being in the Air Force only three weeks. It seems that he put the U. S. on top in air supremacy with his collapsible vest pocket super-jet. After the parade he is willing to take all courageous people up for a free test flight.

A motor-cycle with a side car on it is now coming into view. The passenger is Marilyn Wilson, and she has her typewriter set up in front of her. She is trying to meet a deadline for her syndicated column, "Sidecar Sidelights." Her story this time will be on her latest trip to Siberia, where she was tasting various types of salt in the Siberian salt mines, in an attempt to establish their effect on the Russian mind.

The only float in the parade is coming now. It belongs to Joan Woodroe, who is using it to display her art efforts to the public. Joan won a prize in a contest when one of her paintings was accidentally hung upside-down. Her most famous works now hang in the Metropolitan Museum.

Stanley Church is carrying a banner advertising his company's new product, Super Bounce Gym Shoes. These shoes, guaranteed to help basketball players to make more baskets by enabling them to bound 16 to 20 inches extra into the air each time the slightest pressure is exerted on the ball of the foot, were made for and sold exclusively to Lyndonville players. Soon boys from all over the state were moving to Lyndonville, so that they could be on a winning basketball team. Practically overnight Lyndonville has grown to the point where New York City is now its largest suburb. That, of course, is one reason why this parade is being held here. It was very convenient for the townspeople to attend a suburban parade.

The two women rolling in the street are Suzanne Krisher, Lady Wrestler, and her eminent teacher, Dorothy Jean Dack. They will appear at Madison Square Garden as the main attraction, next week, and are taking every opportunity to practice their art. Suzanne is the favorite over her teacher at 2 to 1.

Commodore Barbara Barry is the girl in the Wave Uniform coming next. The uniforms are now green, since they had to change colors when the WAVES got bigger. Barbara is satisfied, as she did not like blue anyway.

The driver in the Red Jaguar is Velma Waterson. She lost out romantically at Murphy's in the town that used to be Medina (now part of Greater Lyndonville) and is currently engaged to the Woolworth heir, Lance. Elaine Otto is her passenger. As a graduate of the Ted Mack program, she is now a howling success at the Roxy Theater, where she does imitations of Betty Hutton records.

That laugh you hear now came from Sharon Redshaw Nicolai. In her spare time she makes laugh records for use by NBC-TV. This gives her a chance to release some of the pent-up giggles that plague her — a condition brought about by silence enforced whenever her husband is near.

Elton "Ot" Bentley is the clown passing out bubble gum and balloons, to the kiddies. Both products are his own inventions. You chew the balloons and blow up the bubble gum and tie it on a string. He has been a success as the second Clara-Belle on the Howdy-Don'ty program on TV.

Here comes Sandra Munzel, Dean of the Charming Charm School for Charming Charmers. She is teaching the New Yorkers how to relax Lyndonville style. With her is another teacher, Elaine Neuman, who teaches Sandra's youngsters how to relax Brooklyn style.

That funny apparatus worn by Sally Smith is the newest in telephone operator's equipment, a portable wrist watch dial telephone which enables the wearer to contact directly anyone in the world. Sally's voice has become famous all over the globe with her, "Hello, I'm here, are you there?"

Pushing the lumber wagon is Pat Roth. She has gone into partnership with her brother, Roberto, but I guess he forgot to put gas in the vehicle. No, I'm wrong, he forgot to hitch the horse on the front of the thing. Here comes James Enderby to give her a push with his new super-sonic racer. General Motors gave him a check for one million dollars when he found a way to run the race at Minneapolis on one drop of gas; he then turned around and purchased General Motors.

Representing the Rockettes is the famous Laura Dix. She wanted to go into ballet with Gordon, but he kept stepping on her toes, so she quit to join the Rockettes.

Marylon Lake is now in the movies. She plays the daughter of her very distant relative, Veronica. Marylon wears the famous Lake hairdo to help play up the relationship.

After the parade, that quiet-voiced senator, Alan Foss, will come up here to say a few words. He has taken over as chairman of the Congressional Investigating Committee. The former chairman, Charlie, no, I mean Joe McCarthy resigned when he lost his voice.

Almost at the tail end of the parade is Bert "Homer" Ames. He is riding that well-known horse, Champger. As usual Bert is going about things in the wrong way. He is sitting on the horse backwards and the horse is out of step. Homer's chief claim to fame has come about through his accidental invention of this famous robot-horse, which was so life-like, besides being cheap to maintain, that both Trigger and Champion were retired in favor of "it". All Homer has had to do is accompany his horse all over the country. He likes it, too, because it is an easier way of traveling than on foot.

Oh yes, and there's Shirley Waters Killquart, still wearing her battle fatigues, and waving her pencil. Looks like a Chinese pencil from here. Well, that's it for today folks; glad we could get together.

Oh, someone just handed me a note from Senator Foss, who states that he has to catch a plane for Washington, immediately, and will be unavailable for comment.

We will now resume regular programming schedules. We hope that you have enjoyed this special presentation of the LCS Ten-Year Parade as much as we have enjoyed bringing it to you. Once again, this is George "Ace" Bentley, signing off until the next celebration of this great event, in 1974. See you then.
